CM1 — comment text, round trip

Three comments to type. What comes out must equal what went in, whatever encoding the producer chose to store it in.

CM2 — comment shape

Two paragraphs, nothing at all, and one space. The three are different states and a tool that collapses them is losing information.

CM3 — characters hostile to the output format

The output is Markdown and JSON. A comment is arbitrary user text and may contain either syntax. Neither may leak into the structure of the output.

CM7 — colour

A survey rather than an assertion: the palette belongs to the tool.
